	Name
Name in upper left corner.	English 8
	Summary Paragraph Should They Be Separated?
Title is centered and each word capitalized.	Josh Plaut's article "A Painful Separation" published in the November 5, 1993
The paragraph is indented.	Science World, examined a couple's decision to separate their conjoined twins. When
The publication name is capitalized and italicized.	Amy and Angela Lakeberg were born sharing a heart and a liver, their parents had to decide if the twins should be separated. If the couple let nature take its course, both girls would surely die. The family's doctor, Dr. Jonathan Muraskas, advised them to let
An expert is cited.	nature take its course because the surgery to separate the two was too dangerous.
	Other people, like medical expert Arthur Caplan, believed leaving their fate to nature was the best route since the chances of either of the twins living together or apart was slim. He believed the money spent on trying to save just one of the twins should go to The paragraph is double spaced.	help many more others. The Lakebergs didn't want to let their girls die without a fight, so they decided to seek another opinion and found a team of doctors who agreed to perform the surgery. Some medical experts agree with these doctors because they feel no one should have to live life conjoined. The surgery to separate the twins would be better than no attempt at all to save at least one. Plaut leaves it to the reader to decide
A clincher statement concludes the paragraph.	who is right.
This paragraph is 224 words. Use that number as a guide.	